
RESPONSE FROM HARBOTTLE & LEWIS LLP TO
THE CULTURE MEDIA AND SPORT COMMITTEE AND
THE HOME AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

Preliminary matters

- 1 This document responds to questions raised by the Rt Hon Keith Vaz MP (Chairman of the Home Affairs Committee ("HAC")) in a letter dated 21 July 2011 and by John Whittingdale OBE MP (Chairman of the Culture, Media and Sport Committee ("CMSC")) in a letter dated 29 July 2011. Both letters are at Appendix A to this response.
- 2 This document proceeds as follows:
 - a. First, a basic chronology of relevant events.
 - b. Second, a detailed explanation of the limited nature of the work which News International instructed Harbottle & Lewis LLP ("the Firm") to do.
 - c. Third, some observations on the evidence given to the Committees by Messrs Murdoch (senior and junior) and others.
 - d. Fourth, an explanation of the law of legal professional privilege and confidentiality, in order to deal with the misconception that a solicitor is permitted (or even obliged) to report to the police material supplied to him by his client if that material shows that the client has been involved in criminal conduct.
 - e. Fifth, an explanation of what happened to the Firm's file after the matter had been completed, in order to deal with suggestions from some quarters that it should have been unearthed earlier and that there is something untoward in the fact that it was not.
- 3 In view of the ongoing criminal investigation we have contacted the Metropolitan Police about the contents of this document. As a result we have been requested by the Metropolitan Police not to include any reference at all to the contents of the emails which the Firm reviewed in 2007 at the present time. This is not (for the avoidance of doubt) because those emails are being included in order to put the Firm's work (and some of the evidence given to the CMSC) in context.

- a. Mr Goodman and Glenn Mulcaire were arrested on 8 August 2006. A police investigation into their activities followed, and News International immediately engaged external solicitors (Burton Copeland, specialist criminal defence lawyers) to deal with that investigation. It is apparent from the evidence which was given to the CMSC in 2009 by Colin Myler, Tom Crone, Andy Coulson, Les Hinton and Stuart Kuttner that Burton Copeland undertook a very substantial exercise, far more substantial than that undertaken by the Firm. We return in more detail to this evidence below.
- b. Mr Goodman pleaded guilty on 29 November 2006 to conspiracy to intercept voicemail messages on mobile phones belonging to three members of the Royal Household. Sentencing was deferred to 26 January 2007, when Mr Justice Gross sentenced Mr Goodman to 4 months imprisonment. On the same day Mr Coulson announced that he was retiring as editor of the News of the World.
- c. On 5 February 2007, News International (Mr Hinton) wrote to Mr Goodman terminating his employment. The letter states "I recognise this episode followed many unblemished, and frequently distinguished, years of service to the News of the World. In view of this, and in recognition of the pressures on your family, it has been decided that upon your termination you will receive one year's salary. In all the circumstances, we would of course be entitled to make no payment whatever. ... You will be paid, through payroll, on 6 February 2007, 12 months' base salary, subject to normal deductions of tax and national insurance" We draw attention to this passage because the topic of payments to Mr Goodman after his conviction has been the subject of questions by the CMSC on more than one occasion¹. We do not know what his annual salary was, nor the period of notice to which he was entitled, nor whether News International did in fact, as Mr Hinton said it was going to, pay Mr Goodman a year's salary on 6 February 2007. Mr Hinton also explained that Mr Goodman had a right to appeal internally against his dismissal.

¹ Paragraph 445 of the CMSC's Second Report dated 24 February 2010 refers to evidence from News International about the amounts paid to Mr Goodman on the termination of his employment. The paragraph summarises that evidence as being that Mr Goodman was paid "notice, legal costs and a compensatory award. The group declined to confirm the amounts but said the awards were below the £60,600 statutory minimum".

- g. On 14 March 2007, Mr Goodman therefore submitted a lengthy list of the documents which he wanted News International to provide for the purposes of his appeal. These included emails passing between himself and various News of the World executives on various topics.
- h. We do not know for certain what happened between the date of Mr Goodman's request for documents on 14 March 2007 and the Firm being instructed on 9 May 2007. However, the following may reasonably be deduced from an email of instructions sent by Mr Chapman to Mr Abramson on 10 May 2007. (Copies of this document together with the fax from Mr Chapman to Mr Abramson to which it refers are at Appendix B. Certain names have been redacted at the request of the Metropolitan Police.)
 - i. News International refused Mr Goodman's request for documents.
 - ii. News International gathered together all the emails "which [News International's] IT department were able to recover from archive" fitting the categories set out by Mr Goodman in his request. It seems from an email from Simon Lowndes (Head of Managed Services in News International's Information Technology Department) dated 14 May 2007 that these emails were placed into "5 sub-folders" in a Human Resources folder for Mr Cloke on News International's server.
 - iii. Mr Chapman and Mr Cloke had themselves been through these emails for the purpose of finding any evidence "to support the contentions made by Goodman in his letter of 2 March 2007, paragraphs i and ii - i.e. that his illegal activities were known about and supported by [REDACTED], and that [REDACTED], and others were carrying out similar illegal procedures". Mr Chapman and Mr Cloke "found nothing that amounted to reasonable evidence of either of the above contentions".
- i. On 9 May 2007 Mr Chapman telephoned Mr Abramson (then a partner in the Firm). They had worked together before on a number of civil litigation matters for News International. There is no note of the conversation on the file, but Mr Chapman then sent instructions to Mr Abramson by email on 10 May 2007 (see Appendix B). This email set out the history above about Mr Goodman's dismissal and appeal, and the emails and sent them to the Firm in hard copy by courier on either 16 or 17 May 2007. (Even then some of the emails appeared only in cut off form.)

- m. In relation to the review of the emails, the time records held by the Firm suggest the following as a summary of work during the retainer:
 - i. The team of junior employees spent a total between them of about 46 hours (spread between 15 and 24 May 2007) on this matter, their time mostly being spent in searching through the email sub-folders by remote access.
 - ii. Out of a total of 8 hours 24 minutes recorded by Mr Abramson on this matter between 9 and 30 May 2007, 1 hour and 42 minutes were specifically attributed to reading the emails. On 18 May 2007, Mr Cloke emailed Mr Abramson asking "if we could have the results next week. I'd like to write to CG on Thursday if at all possible." (We return below to what this indicates about the purpose of the exercise being done by the Firm.) Mr Abramson also recorded 30 minutes on 22 May 2007 in meeting the junior team to review progress, and this meeting almost certainly included some consideration of whatever emails had by then been found and thought of potential relevance. In addition, Mr Abramson made a time entry of 24 minutes for a telephone discussion with News International on 24 May 2007; there is no note of this conversation on the file.
- n. On Friday 25 May 2007, Mr Abramson sent an email to Mr Chapman at 13:13 headed "Draft for discussion this pm". The email set out the proposed text of a letter recording the findings of the email review. It stated "We have on your instructions searched the emails that you were able to let us have access to from the accounts of [REDACTED]. I can confirm that we did not find any evidence that proved that [REDACTED] knew that Clive Goodman, Glen Mulcaire or any other journalists at the News of the World were engaged in illegal activities prior to their arrest."
- o. There was then a short telephone discussion, probably about the draft, that same day: emails from 24 May 2007 show a call being arranged for 14:15 on 25 May 2007, and Mr Abramson's time records show a short call on 25 May 2007. Subsequently, at 16:12 on 25 May 2007, Mr Chapman sent an

It involved a payment to Mr Goodman: the Firm does not know whether this payment was in addition to the year's salary which Mr Hinton's letter of 5 February 2007 had indicated would be paid to Mr Goodman on 6 February 2007. The Firm had no involvement whatever in this settlement (although Mr Abramson was subsequently instructed by News International in 2008 in relation to a complaint by Mr Goodman that News International had breached a "non-disparagement" clause in the agreement, which is how the Firm has knowledge of the terms of settlement at all.) We have not set out the amount of the payment to Mr Goodman because the compromise agreement is expressed to be confidential, and it is for both News International and Mr Goodman to decide whether that confidentiality is to be waived. However, we comment below on the implications of this settlement, in July 2007, of Mr Goodman's appeal for James Murdoch's claim that News International was still "resting" on the letter of 29 May 2007 in 2008-2010.

The Retainer: what the Firm was asked to do

- 6 The Firm would like to draw the following points to your attention about its retainer in May 2007.
- 7 The retainer was expressly limited to the context of Mr Goodman's employment dispute. The Firm was being asked to assist News International in dealing with Mr Goodman's internal appeal against his dismissal. The instructions might fairly be paraphrased as: "If we reject Goodman's appeal against dismissal and he brings employment tribunal proceedings, what is the risk of him establishing from these emails that other people were aware of his phone hacking activities, or were doing the same thing themselves?" The point of the exercise which the Firm was asked to do was directly, specifically and solely related to assisting News International in assessing how to handle Mr Goodman's appeal against dismissal. Thus in context, the advice of the Firm in the letter of 29 May 2007 was only that if News International pushed this matter to an employment tribunal, there was nothing in the emails reviewed which provided "reasonable evidence" that Mr Goodman's grounds of appeal were well founded. It went no further than that (and even in that context it seems not to have been relied upon by News International in any event, as we explain below.)
- 8 There was absolutely no question of the Firm being asked to provide News International with a clean bill of health which it could deploy years later in wholly different contexts for wholly different purposes. If the letter was to be communicated to any third party, then so far as the Firm was aware that third £500,000 and £1 million”⁶). If, therefore, the Firm had been asked in 2009 or 2010 whether News International could use its 2007 advice, which had been given to assist in assessing how to handle Mr Goodman’s employment dispute, for the very different purpose of bolstering its stance before Parliament, or indeed for any other purpose outside the defunct Goodman employment dispute, the Firm would undoubtedly have refused unless it could have been satisfied that the letter was not going to be presented in a misleading manner. This would have required proper explanation to be given of the limited nature of the Firm’s retainer, as well as the specific purpose of the exercise which had been performed in 2007 and its limited scope.

10 If the Firm had initially been given a retainer as broad as instructions “to find out what the hell was going on” or (to put it more formally) to undertake an investigation which News International could use for broader purposes, such as laying it before Parliament as independent support for the “one rogue reporter” theory, the Firm would have refused the instructions. Instructions of that nature would amount to asking whether there was evidence of wide criminal conduct by News International’s employees: this would have been a criminal matter, and the Firm has no expertise in that field. Any solicitors accepting instructions of that nature would probably have done at least the following:

- a. insisted on unlimited access to all emails and other records of News International, rather than being restricted to a limited selection produced by News International itself;
- b. insisted on direct access to key witnesses;
- c. insisted on News International instructing both specialist criminal lawyers and forensic accountants;
- d. engaged specialists in forensic computer analysis to assist in finding emails and other electronic evidence; and
- e. required access to the documents seized by the police from Mr Muleaire.

A review of this nature would have taken a long time (as opposed to a fortnight, which is the period between the Firm commencing work through remote access to the emails on 15 May 2007 and the letter being written on 29

⁶ Evidence given by Mr James Murdoch before the CMSC on 19 July 2011 in answer to Q265.

- 13 Finally on the question of its retainer, the Firm would like to draw attention to the fact that its remit was specifically limited by News International to a search for evidence supporting Mr Goodman's first two contentions in his 2 March 2007 letter: (a) that certain named individuals knew about and supported his interception of voicemail messages, and (b) that other News of the World staff were themselves carrying out the same activities (i.e. phone hacking). This was not a broad instruction to search for evidence of other criminal acts (and again, as civil litigators without criminal law expertise, the Firm would not have accepted such instructions). Whatever was shown to Lord Macdonald by Messrs Hickman & Rose, it cannot have been evidence relating to knowledge of phone hacking since, as Lord Macdonald has pointed out in his evidence, he was conflicted in relation to phone hacking and could not look at documents relating to that issue¹⁰. He said that the emails he was shown were "to do with an entirely separate issue" from phone hacking¹¹. It is apparent from Lord Macdonald's own evidence, therefore, that the material on which he was commenting fell outside the scope of News International's 2007 instructions to the Firm. As Lord Macdonald said in his evidence before the CMSC in July 2011¹²:

I do not know what Harbottle and Lewis were looking at it for. If they were looking at it in terms of whether it supplied more evidence of phone hacking, that is one question. If they were looking at it for evidence of wider criminality, that is another question.

As explained above, the Firm was indeed engaged to look for "more evidence of phone hacking", and was not engaged to look for "evidence of wider criminality".

Comments on various aspects of evidence given to Parliament

- 14 The Firm has been asked by the CMSC (question 15 of its letter of 29 July 2011) to set out any matters in respect of which it believes that the CMSC or its predecessor may have been given misleading or inaccurate information about the review undertaken by the Firm.

there was only one rogue reporter.") is accurate (if it was stated in the terms reported). The Firm did not "come to" the CMSC and did not write its letter for submission to the CMSC.

¹⁰ Evidence given by Lord Macdonald before the CMSC on 19 July 2011 in answer to Q1006: I said, "I can't look at anything that has anything to do with phone hacking." They said, "This is an issue that isn't to do with phone hacking; it's entirely separate".

would have been more likely to have fought Mr Goodman through tribunal proceedings, especially given the terms of settlement previously indicated in Mr Hinton's 5 February 2007 letter.

- d. The CMSC has suggested to witnesses that News International settled its litigation with Mr Taylor and/or Mr Clifford at the levels which it did because the civil disclosure exercise had produced evidence¹⁴ suggesting that phone hacking was not confined to Mr Goodman. If it transpires that this is the case, then it must follow that News International knew at that time that the letter could not be "rested on" in a wider context than that in which it had been provided. It must also follow that News International knew at that time that there was other evidence (not contained in the "5 sub-folders") which demonstrated that there was a wider problem at News International in respect of phone hacking. Thereafter, News International could not possibly have "rested on" the letter even assuming that it had done so before.
- e. In this context, the CMSC may wish to consider whether News International has waived any right to claim privilege over the legal advice it received (internally and externally) about the need to settle the Taylor litigation and the quantum of that settlement. In civil litigation, if a party deploys in evidence privileged material, then he waives privilege in all associated material so that the Court and the other party can see that what has been released from privilege is a fair account of the advice received, and that a misleading impression has not been created¹⁵. At the July 2011 hearing News International (by Mr James Murdoch and others) gave extensive evidence of the legal advice it received in settling the Taylor litigation as follows:

Mr James Murdoch: Thirdly, the company sought distinguished outside counsel to understand that, if the case were litigated and if it were to be lost, which was the great likelihood, what the financial quantum would be or what that would cost the company. It was advised that, with legal expenses and damages, it could be between £500,000 and £1 million or thereabouts. I do not recall the exact number of the advice. I think that it was £250,000 plus expenses, plus litigation costs—something like that¹⁶

¹⁴ Such as the "For Neville" email. See Guardian Newspaper article dated 22 July 2011.

¹⁵ The classic authority is the decision of Mustill J (later Lord Mustill) in The Nea Kateria [1981] Com LR 138.

they were, but also to the advice from Mr Crone²⁰. It would be of interest to learn whether the dialogue between News International and its lawyers about whether to settle Mr Taylor's claim, and if so at what level, included any reference to any documents which had emerged in the civil law disclosure exercise (including, but not limited to, advice given to News International about the impact of the "For Neville" email which was produced by Mr Taylor's lawyers during that litigation.)

- g. The suggestion that News International could possibly have continued to "rest on" the letter even after the CMSC's Second Report was published in February 2010, with its finding of "collective amnesia" by News of the World witnesses, is hard to credit.

- 16 In addition, the Firm would like to draw to the CMSC's attention to the following evidence given to it in 2009²¹.

Mr Myler: I think the first thing to remember is that as soon as Mr Goodman and Mr Mulcaire were arrested News International had an outside firm of solicitors to absolutely oversee the investigation to cooperate with the police, to be a bridgehead, to give whatever facility the police required. It was completely hands-off, if you like, for transparency from the company's point of view.²²

Q1388 Paul Farrelly: Who were the solicitors who handled the investigation?

Mr Crone: Burton Copeland. They are probably the leading firm in this country for white collar fraud.

Q1389 Paul Farrelly: Did that investigation go wider than investigating the circumstances because the court case was coming up of the Mulcaire/Goodman connection? Did it go wider and ask people such as the deputy editor, the managing editor, the news editor, the chief reporter as to whether they had been involved in any way with Mr Mulcaire? Did it go wider?

Mr Crone: Sorry, this is for me?

Q1390 Paul Farrelly: No, this is to Mr Myler because Mr Myler gave evidence to the PCC.

Mr Myler: I think Mr Crone is the best person to answer.

²⁰ Under English law, legal professional privilege applies just as much to the dialogue between a client and its in-house lawyer, like Mr Crone, as it does to the dialogue between a client and its external lawyer. Thus it is possible for News International to withhold documents or material from its evidence on the basis of legal professional privilege attaching to communications to and from Mr Crone.

²² Evidence given by Mr Myler before the CMSC on 21 July 2009 in answer to Q1384.

Q1397 Paul Farrelly: I want to wrap-up fairly shortly. When the other names came into the frame after November 29, did the remit of the investigation in News International broaden?

Mr Crone: Yes, to some extent but the questions had already been asked. Was anyone involved with Mulcaire, or doing this, that or the other? Burton Copeland had looked at all of the financial records; and there was subsequently an email check done which went to 2,500 emails; and that produced no evidence either.

Q1398 Paul Farrelly: The question: was anyone else involved with Mulcaire? The answer was: no. Nothing else was found?

Mr Crone: No evidence was found.

Q1663 Mr Farrelly: Can I just ask you about Clive Goodman. You say you were deceived. How was Clive Goodman able to pay £12,300 to Glenn Mulcaire? Was it actually in readies or did it go through the accounts department in a masked way?

Mr Kuttner: I think the answer to the first part is it was in cash, it was a cash payment. The answer to the second part is that it was all accounted for in the documentation and that is the material that either directly on their own account to the investigating police team, or through Burton Copeland, the solicitor who was looking into these things at News International, was all disclosed.

Q1719 Tom Watson: When you found out about the arrests. Presumably you commissioned an inquiry?

Mr Coulson: Yes. Obviously we wanted to know internally very quickly what the hell had gone on. Then I brought in Burton Copeland, an independent firm of solicitors to carry out an investigation. We opened up the files as much as we could. There was nothing that they asked for that they were not given.²³

Q2168 Paul Farrelly: ...Can I just ask you on what basis did you feel able to give that answer, that to your recollection Tom Crone said that various investigations had been undertaken internally as the facts established themselves as the charges and trial developed. Can you tell us on what basis you gave us that answer?

Mr Hinton: ...He [Andy Coulson] had numerous conversations, the charges were laid, he invoked the help of Tom Crone, who is a company lawyer with a lot of experience,,, We bought in a firm of solicitors and there were many, many conversations with the police, and not involving me.

- 17 Evidence was also given by News International to the Press Complaints Commission ("PCC") on the role of Burton Copeland. The PCC report on phone message tapping allegations dated 9 November 2009 refers at ²³ See also answers to questions 1470, 1471 and 1558 asked by the CMSC in 2009.

- 21 Even if, therefore, some emails reviewed by the Firm had been suggestive of criminal conduct by employees of News International, then the Firm could not possibly have reported this to the police without client consent. That would have been against the Firm's obligations under clear modern law of the highest authority and a very serious breach of professional conduct. Further, neither common law, statute or regulation imposed any relevant obligation on the Firm to break its duties of confidence by reporting to any external authority. Criticism of the Firm for failing to report News International to the police or any other external body is therefore wholly misplaced, regardless of what the emails do or do not show.

What happened to the file

- 22 It has been suggested in some quarters that it is surprising that it took until April 2011 for the Firm's file on this matter to have come to light. We therefore think it would be of assistance to the Committees to understand what happened.
- a. Once the Firm's letter had been issued on 29 May 2007, this retainer came to an end²⁶. The Firm issued its bill on 13 June 2007, and News International paid it on 31 July 2007. The file went into archive storage with an external storage company, Restore, on 10 November 2008²⁷.
 - b. One by one, all those who had been involved in the retainer left the Firm in the normal course of events, as set out above. After the last member of the junior reviewing team left on 28 January 2011, there was literally no-one left at the Firm who had had any involvement in the original retainer at all.
 - c. The first time that the Firm's 2007 involvement was mentioned to Parliament, so far as the Firm can ascertain, was in the evidence given to the CMSC leading to its Second Report dated 24 February 2010. The Firm's name was not mentioned in oral evidence, but was mentioned in written evidence and this was recorded in the appendices to the Second Report (which also quoted in full the letter of 29 May 2007). The letter hacking activities. It was not retained to look for evidence of wider criminal activities and did not do so.

- b. It was not given free rein to look through whatever it wanted. It was asked to search through some emails which had been assembled by News International and isolated into a specific area on News International's server (the "5 sub-folders"). It was given no access to other documents or to witnesses.
- c. Its exercise was specifically and only to assist News International in handling an internal appeal by Mr Goodman against his dismissal. This was a classic civil litigation exercise in assessing the potency of documentary evidence in an employment dispute. It was a short and limited exercise lasting two weeks and mostly involving junior employees. All this was known to News International.
- d. The desktop exercise done by the Firm is to be contrasted with the far longer, far more detailed and (no doubt) far more expensive exercise undertaken by Burton Copeland in the 9 months which that firm is said to have spent in the News International offices. It may therefore be that Mr Rupert Murdoch was confused or misinformed as to which lawyers had been retained for what purpose when he gave evidence that the Firm had been retained to "find out what the hell was going on". At any rate, this was an inaccurate and misleading account of the Firm's retainer.
- e. The Firm was not retained to provide News International with a "good conduct certificate" which it could show to Parliament, or anyone else, years after the event and for a wholly different purpose. Such use of the Firm's advice was expressly prohibited under its terms of engagement. The Firm did not know that News International was subsequently going to deploy its 2007 advice in this way (in 2009-2010) and would not have given its consent to that use had it been sought.
- f. The Firm rejects the evidence of Mr James Murdoch that News International "rested on" the letter of 29 May 2007 for its alleged belief (until late 2010) that Mr Goodman was a lone "rogue reporter". It is noteworthy that it has taken until 2011 for News International to make this assertion.

Dear Harbottle and Lewis

29 July 2011

Thank you for your letters of 20th, 21st July and 28th July. I am pleased to note that you have received a waiver of privilege from News Corp and News International, in relation to questions from the Select Committee.

You will be aware that in his evidence to the CMS Committee on 19 July 2011, James Murdoch referred to the review of internal emails that Harbottle and Lewis carried out for News International in May 2007. On 27 May 2007, Harbottle and Lewis wrote to Jon Chapman, News International's Director of Legal Affairs at the time, that :

We have on your instructions reviewed the emails to which you have provided access from the accounts of:

Andy Coulson, Stuart Kuttner, Ian Edmondson, Clive Goodman, Neil Wallis, Jules Stenson

I can confirm that we did not find anything in those emails which appeared to us to be reasonable evidence that Clive Goodman's illegal actions were known about and supported by both or either of Andy Coulson, the Editor, and Neil Wallis, the Deputy Editor, and/or that Ian Edmondson, the News Editor, and others were carrying out similar illegal procedures.

On 19 July 2011, James Murdoch told the Committee that the review of emails conducted by Harbottle & Lewis was one of the things that News International rested on when reassuring the Committee in 2009 that phone hacking was the work of one rogue reporter (Q346, Q362). James Murdoch told the Committee that when News International re-examined the file of emails retained by Harbottle and Lewis in 2011 it determined that there was a requirement to bring it to the attention of the police (Q335, Q339, Q363 and Q365).

Questions for written answer

5 February 2007

Dear Clive

I am sorry to have to be writing this letter, but am afraid that events of the last few days and months provide us no choice but to terminate your employment with News Group Newspapers Limited.

This action, I know you understand, is the consequence of your plea of guilty, and subsequent imprisonment on 26 January, in relation to conspiracy to intercept voicemail messages. This obviously constitutes a very serious breach of your obligations as an employee, such as to warrant dismissal without any warnings. In the circumstances of your plea and the court's sentence, it is reasonable for us to dismiss you without any further enquiries.

I recognise this episode followed many unblemished, and frequently distinguished, years of service to the News of the World. In view of this, and in recognition of the pressures on your family, it has been decided that upon your termination you will receive one year's salary. In all the circumstances, we would of course be entitled to make no payment whatever.

To summarise, in formal language, the following arrangements apply with immediate effect (but may be varied or revoked in the event of a successful disciplinary appeal);

- (a) Your dismissal takes effect immediately and your final day of employment is therefore today.

Dear Mr Cloke,

Re: Notice of termination of employment

I refer to Les Hinton's letter of February 5, 2007 informing me of my dismissal for alleged gross misconduct.

The letter identifies the reason for the dismissal as "recent events". I take this to mean my plea of guilty to conspiracy to intercept the voicemail messages of three employees of the royal family.

I am appealing against this decision on the following grounds:

- i The decision is perverse in that the actions leading to this criminal charge were carried out with the full knowledge and support of [REDACTED] Payment for Glen Mulcaire's services was arranged by [REDACTED]
- ii The decision is inconsistent, because [REDACTED] and other members of staff were carrying out the same illegal procedures. The prosecution counsel, the counsel for Glen Mulcaire, and the Judge at the sentencing hearing agreed that other News of the World employees were the clients for Mulcaire's five solo substantive charges. This practice was widely discussed in the daily editorial conference, until explicit reference to it was banned by the Editor. As far as I am aware, no other member of staff has faced disciplinary action, much less dismissal.
- iii My conviction and imprisonment cannot be the real reason for my dismissal. The legal manager, Tom Crone, attended virtually every meeting of my legal team and was given full access to the Crown Prosecution Service's evidence files. He, and other senior staff of the paper, had long advance knowledge that I would plead guilty. Despite this, the paper continued to employ me. Throughout my suspension, I was given book serialisations to write and was consulted on several occasions about royal stories they needed to check. The paper continued to employ me for a substantial part of my custodial sentence.

Mr. Clive Goodman

Dear Mr. Goodman,

Thank you for your letter of 2nd March 2007.

I would like to request your attendance at an appeal hearing on Tuesday, 20th March 2007 at 10.00 am at the offices of News Magazines Limited at 2 Chelsea Manor Gardens, London SW3 5PN (when you arrive there, please ask for me at Reception). The purpose of the hearing is to consider, under the News International disciplinary procedure, your appeal against your dismissal on 5th February, on the grounds raised in your letter of 2nd March.

The appeal will be heard by Colln Myler, Editor of the News of the World, and I will also be in attendance. In addition, there will be a note taker present. You are entitled to be accompanied as specified in the Company's Disciplinary procedure. Please let me know in advance if you decide to bring a companion and their name and contact details.

If there are any documents you wish to be considered at the appeal hearing, please provide copies as soon as possible. If you do not have those documents, please provide details so that they can be obtained.

Dear Mr Cloke,

Thank you for your letter of March 12. Although I can confirm that I will be able to attend the planned appeal hearing on March 20, for the reasons set out below, I believe it would be sensible and reasonable to postpone the hearing.

I note that you are proposing to alter substantially the normal procedure for such a hearing. I am not convinced that the proposed alterations are necessary. However, in light of the exceptional circumstances you identify in your letter, I think it would be sensible for me to be accompanied by my legal representative rather than a work colleague. Please confirm to me you are happy to proceed on this basis.

I will let you have copies of relevant documents in my possession as soon as possible.

In the meantime, I would be grateful if you could provide the following documents:

i A transcription of the sentencing hearing from the Old Bailey on January 26, 2007.

ii Full details available by a print out of every story payment requested by me from October 2005 until my arrest – to include details of which executive approved each credit for payment, which executive authorised each credit for final payment, and from which budget each credit came. Also, the same audit trail for story payment requests from me that were not authorised for payment.

iii Emails and other documents relating to my transfer from the Editorial Management budget to the News budget and any further relevant documents.

iv Copies of emails passing between [redacted] and me, [redacted] and me, [redacted] and me, [redacted] and me, and [redacted] and me for the period October 2005 until January 26 2007.

APPENDIX C

a lawyer must be able to give his client an absolute and unqualified assurance that whatever the client tells him in confidence will never be disclosed without his consent.

- 5 This is not a peculiarity of English law. In the Three Rivers decision, Lord Scott set out authorities not only from this jurisdiction but also from the United States, Europe, Canada, Australia and New Zealand which all speak with one voice (see paras 31-34). Lord Scott concluded that all these authorities recognise that unless the clients can be assured that what they tell their lawyers will not be disclosed by the lawyers without their (the clients') consent, there will be cases in which the requisite candour will be absent and concluded that it is necessary as a matter of policy that communications between clients and lawyers, whereby the clients are hoping for the assistance of the lawyers' legal skills in the management of their (the clients') affairs, should be secure against the possibility of any scrutiny from others, whether the police, the executive, business competitors, inquisitive busybodies or anyone else

- 6 Unsurprisingly this state of the law is reflected in the Code of Conduct issued by the Solicitors Regulation Authority: see Rule 4.01 ("You and your firm must keep the affairs of clients and former clients confidential except where disclosure is required or permitted by law or by your client (or former client).") There are very few circumstances in which disclosure is either required or permitted by law, none of which arise in this case. The only one which could have any relevance is what is known as the "fraud exception": privilege never attaches to communications between lawyer and client if the client has a secret intention of using the advice to enable him to further or facilitate crime or fraud. Please note that this applies only where the client consults a lawyer with the motive of obtaining advice which will assist him in the commission of an offence (not privileged), as distinct from a client consulting a lawyer about an offence which has already been committed (privileged). This distinction runs through all the authorities but is neatly encapsulated in a dictum of Lord Sumner in O'Rourke v Darbishire [1920] AC 581 at 613:

To consult a solicitor about an intended course of action, in order to be advised whether it is legitimate or not, or to lay before a solicitor the facts relating to a charge of fraud, actually made or anticipated, and make a clean breast of it with the object of being advised about the best way to meet it, is a very different thing from consulting him in order to learn how to plan, execute or stifle an actual fraud.

For the lawyer to appreciate that this exception is engaged, however, the lawyer must have prima facie evidence suggesting that he is being used by the client in that way. The Firm had no such evidence (and for the avoidance of doubt, is making no suggestion in this response that News International had such a purpose).
